Therese is a year and a half old now. She loves climbing on anything. When we were decorating the tree, she climbed up the ladder nearly to the top before we noticed how high she was. She definitely doesn't have her father's fear of heights.

She is enjoying her new hair cut as well. (See Anissa's description for more details on that.)

The audio you hear (It's a Quicktime audio file so if you don't hear anything, Quicktime isn't installed on your computer.) was spliced together from a few different recording sessions. It's like pulling teeth to get her to say things. What I should have recorded was her favorite word, "no". She uses "no" for everything including "yes". Let's hope that doesn't continue into her teen years.

We sure love our little "baby".

Click the triangle play button below to hear her giggle while I was tickling her.
