

Drew is on his last year as a kid. Next year he'll be a teenager! It's hard to believe that cute little baby has grown up so quickly. I sculpt our kids portraits when they're 7.5 weeks old and again when they're 3.5 years old. I look at that tiny little head and can remember holding him in my arms. He's way too big now to hold in my arms now but I'm no less proud of him.

Drew plays French Horn in the Middle school band and even got the opportunity to march as part of the band in the Litchfield Watercade Parade this summer. This was the first year Litchfield ran a Middle School Marching Band program.

He's also involved with the boys swim team. He really liked the basketball coach that he had for Phy Ed class but our swim coach sent him a personalized letter talking about swimming and that turned Drew toward a season of swimming instead. I am SOOOOOO happy our coach sent that letter!!!
