

Theo is very excited for Christmas. He can't wait because he's saving his money to buy something. He's not sure what exactly, but he's saving. In fact, I'm afraid he's more excited for the after-Christmas-sales than anything else.

Theo knows how to smooz his way into our hearts. he's always ready to help out with dishes or mowing or babysitting because he knows that his parents are more likely to let him play on the ipad or give him a little money if he helps out without being told. He will make a good sales person someday.

Theo's greeting blooper